

The New York Times

20 Wines Under $20: Postcards From Around the World

By Eric Asimov Jan. 28, 2021

In a pandemic era, when traveling is largely out of the question, these wines, good values all, can take you on a trip around the globe.

Feudo Montoni Sicilia Catarratto Masso 2018

Catarratto is perhaps the most widely planted white grape on Sicily, but it does not have a great reputation. It was widely used in Marsala, a sweet fortified wine, along with a lot of cheap whites. But what if it was grown conscientiously and made with care? Would it have unimagined potential? I wouldn't call this wine a revelation. But Feudo Montoni farms organically in central Sicily and makes a handful of excellent wines, and I'd say this is a fine rendition: dry, lively and profoundly herbal. It would be a great match for delicate fish and shellfish. (Wilson Daniels, Napa, Calif.)

<https://www.nytimes.com/2021/01/28/dining/drinks/20-wines-under-20-dollars.html>